THEATER.-The beautiful French drama o Marie Antoinette," was produced in fine style ast evening, to a large audience; and will be reeated to-night. It is one of the most spirited and stirring pieces of the day, and of that style which carries an audience along with it, working county have devoted much time and attention to them up to its own high pitch of excitement. It is, moreover, a literary curiosity, being the production of four different pens, its authors being Messrs. Alexander Dumas, pere, Bayle Bernard, H. J. Conway and Henry Sedley. We can say nothing more than that this child of such prolific brains, is worthy of its descent. Mrs. Sinclair appears particularly to advantage in the beautiful court costume and powdered wig of the Louis XVI age. Her performance of the beautiful part of the Queen, was all that could be expected of her natural abilities and her long stage experience. Mrs. Sinclair is one of the few actresses who have the stage tact to hide stage unnaturalness from an audience, and make them forget, in the excitement of the scene, the show and tinsel of which it is composed. Mr. Sedley is a pleasing comedian, and we should imagine admirably suited to parts of the Charles Mathews school, such as Trying It On." Can not Mr. Sedley give us a few such "little arrangements" before he leaves of billiards between Phelan and Serriter, on a wager said to be $5,000, came off at Detroit yes-

The "Marble Heart" is in preparation, and will be produced on Thursday evening.

A number of new and extensive manufacturies are now going up in our city, among which are Wm. Kyle's foundry, corner of Main and Thireenth; Ainslie & Cochran's addition to their steam engine and machinery manufactory, corner of Main and Fifteenth; Dupont's enlargement of their already extensive paper mill, to subserve the purpose also of a bath house; a cotton factory on Portland Avenue, three new brewries, a planing mill, &c., &c. When these all get into operaion, in addition to those now at work, and others in contemplation, quite an addition to our nanufacturing interests will be had. We would advise every gas consumer to ave one of Sterling's Gas Regenerators. The one now in use at our office has greatly improved our lights, and at the same time, according to a strict test, has shown a saving of 25 per cent .-The Regulator is so constructed that the pressure or combustion) is not changed in using any numper of burners, from 1 to 300. On the 22d of March, the Emperor France reviewed twenty-four thousand troops in the Champ De Mars. The Empress took a peep at the soldiers, also, and so did the Imperial Infant. His Imperial Littleness was dressed in the uniform of a Grenadier of the Guard-a blue coat aced with white, red epaulets, a bearskin cap, and the gold lace worn by a Corporal. The wonder. ful baby must have looked astonishing in that costume. The French do up such things more strikingly than any other people.

MASONIC TEMPLE.—The Christy Minstrels are nightly drawing full houses at this commodious hall. They are the original George Christy Min strels, and no humbug. Their entertainment is varied and rich. Some of the singing is beautiful indeed, and the instrumental music is very fine. Those who miss seeing this company will miss seeing the best company of negro melodists that are now before the public.

Charley, the colored philosopher who officiates at the artesian well, is preparing a new patent medicine. It will be made by boiling sasafras root in artesian water, and thus making a kind of sassafras tea. It will be recommended as a substitute for whisky, upon the plea that it will use up a man equally as quick as the red-eye now the affair has not yet been solved. Capitalists are beginning to make active inquiries for real estate. Houses and lots are selling rapidly, compared with past months and years. The Nashville read will be finished by the beginning of next year, and then property will be sold and bought in earnest. Those who want bargains, had better buy now, for all things are looking up. Yesterday and the night before, were gen uine April weather-showers and moonshine by night, and showers and sunshine by day. It rained awhile and shined a while, it shined awhile as and rained awhile. Of course it blew some and thundered some. But all was April, true to its kind, and nobody was disappointed thereby. journey to the North, and his route says the Memphis Bulletin, lies by the way of Huntsville, Nashville, Louisville, Cincinnati and St. Louis. It will be seen by an advertisement in another column that our Postmaster has made new arrangements as to the time of closing the mails from Louisville to the various points of distribution in the Union. The sale of rare roses, and other plants, advertised for this morning (Wednesday), by Messrs. S. G. Henry & Co., at auction room, is postponed until to-morrow morning (Thursday). The city was apparently quiet yesterday, and we heard of but a single arrest up to a late

An extraordinary suicide of two sisters has lately occurred in England. They were found in a river. The Controversy in the Fifth District.

Because we declined, some time ago, to publish ng communications, written upon both sides of the per, in favor of giving Mr. Jewett the track in the Fifth District without a convention, &c., we were accused of closing doors to his defense. It seems, however, from the following letter, sent to the Elizabethtown Democrat, and declined, that other doors are closed, especially when anything is to doors are closed, especially when anything is to be said against Mr. Jewett, even though it be the explanation of a man personally brought out in the contest. We publish the letter at the request of the author, who claims that he ought to be of the author, who claims that he ought to be people. Men congregate to buy and sell, to bor- heard, and Mr. Jewett can answer through our columns if he desires it. The following is the letter:

To the Editor of the Elizabethtown Democrat:
The Democrat of the 23d inst., has this moment reached me, and in it I find that my name is somewhat connected with a controversy now pending between the Hon. J. H. Jewett and Mr. R. S. Forde. I will avail myself of your courtesy in explaining my connection to the parties and in explaining my connection to the parties, an to what seems to be one of the points in dispute ownat seems to be one of the points in dispute
During the pendency of the Lecompton question before Congress, (I think it was in January, '58, I wrote to Mr. Forde (who then had charge of the delitorial department of the Democrat), that the bill to admit Kansas into the Union unde the Lecompton constitution would be opposed and resisted by some Southern men. I think I stated to him that General Quitman, from my own State, was determined to oppose it, and that, when the old man had made up his mind, no power on earth could change or shake him. I also stated that it was rumored or snake him. I also stated that it was rumored in Washington that Mr. Clay, of Ky., was hostile to the bill. I then spoke of Mr. Jewett, who had informed me a day or two previous that he was opposed to the proposition. Mr. Jewett did not tell me in confidence, but in a prolonged conversation in the National Hotel, he portrayed in an earnest and energetic manner and style, some of the objections that then seemed to weigh heavily on his mind. Further himse high research on his mind. Eutertaining a high personal respect for Mr. Jewett, and knowing him to be an able lawyer, I listened to his objections with much interest, and expressed my regrets that he had come to such conclusions.

At the time referred to, the Lecompton Constitution was the absorbing topic, in and out of Congress, and, in counting the yeas and nays, I thought, of course, that Mr. Jewett would answer "nay,"

"when his name should be called."

"As I have stated, I wrote to Mr. Forde a day or two subsequent, and he being an editor of a public journal, I stated what I would have communicated to any one who takes the least interest in public affairs. I was not aware until sometime afterwards that the relations existing between him and Mr. Jewet were of an unfriendly character. Some months were of an unfriendly character. Some months after this, Mr. Forde reques ed me to give him the substance of the conversation with Mr. Jewett, which I declined doing unless upon the occurrence of a contingency that would fully justify me. Having nothing in the world against Mr. Jewett, I did not intend to become his enemy unless he became the enemy of his own party. Then, and not till then, and then only, "as a Democrat," would I consent to furnish the materials of the conversation, to his detriment. onversation, to his detriment. I would scorn to do him or any other gentleman an act of injustice; and whilst I hold sacred the seal of private confidence, and would not break it to "save the Union of these States," with all their stars and stripes, yet I would "cheer-fully" use all fair and honorable means to defeat any man who opposes the I emocratic party, its orinciples, and time-honored usages. It is not or me to say that Mr. Jewett is hostile to these. He is in the hands of his late constituency, and hey I do not doubt will deal fairly and justly with him. I have no inclination or taste to take part in the struggle now going on in your district.— Other portions of your gallant State present fields far more inviting to the true sons of Democracy. If I could, I might be persuaded to throw a ball into the districts lately represented by Messrs.

Marshall and Underwood. In these did "material aid" seem to be necessary.
You speak, Mr. Editor, of my "labors" amountng to nothing. I know not to what you can re-er. You certainly can't have reference to the 'labors' which the old Union party of Mississippi

Foote, and many others thought saved the Union. I once belonged to that party, but abandoned it to the old Whigs, who, I am told, still cling to it in that State as the "mariner clings to the last plank when the storm and the tempest close about him." I hone it will not be necessary for me to trouble you again—if it should be I trust you will give me a hearing. With respect, &c., H. A. COOKE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 29, 1859.

John G. Saxe's Three Travelers. Saxe, in a letter to the Boston Post, draws these ortraits of three familiar travelers: 1st, the man who travels with his wife; 2d, the man who travels with his wife's sister; 3d, the man who travels with another man's wife. The first case is extremely common, and not particularly interesting. The man is taciturn, and sleeps as much as he can—the woman has a slightly subdued expression of face, and looks a great deal at the scenery along the road, of which she says for the most part—nothing. When she does speak, as sometimes happens at the sight of something very remarkable, she says, "See John!"—that is all. The man looks carefully after the baggage, and assures his spouse, in reply to her question, that "it's all right." The woman takes care of that "it's all right." The woman takes care of the small "traps," and seems comfortable and contented. Although they behave quite rationally, and, in spite of their seeming unsociability, are really very fond of each other, they will make a leasant trip of it -not only to the end of their imonial journey. The man who travels with his wife's sister caries himself, perhaps, in the main, like the man who travels with his wife. But he is much more alkative, and takes more pains to be agreeable. He feels that more is expected of him, and as it goes in commercial affairs, the supply is equal to the demand. A pleasant thing is a wife s sister. not the sort of woman I am talking of. She is not the sort of woman I am talking of. Sue takes the wife's place in the house sometimes, and may chance to make an excellent step-mother. Why not?—for is she not already the aunt of her nephews and nieces? This sort of marriage, however, is, I believe, anti-levetical, and some of the theologians don't approve of it—which is a pity. The man who travels with another man's wife is of a much more marked behavior. How attenis of a much more marked behavior. How attentive he is to all the real and possible wants of the lady? He respects her whims even, which you may be sure, her husband does not, at home or abroad. How carefully he hands her in and out How sedulously he plies her ear with discourse. And yet, he imagines people take him for the lady's spouse! No, my dear sir; the brakeman in the corner knows better than that. Husbands may corner knows better than that. Husbands may be uxurious, but kindness such as vours is more like that of a cavalier servante—which, after all, I dare say, you are not. It's tiresome, though, after a while, unless the lady is remarkably attractive, and pays her own fare, (which she sometimes forgets), and, for a journey of a thousand miles your own wife is much the more agreeable companion.

ORIGIN OF "OPPOSITION."-A veteran Democrat Origin of "Opposition."—A veteran Democrate at the meeting of the Madison county Democracy held at Jackson, on Monday last, alluded very felicitously to the designation which the party opposed to the Democracy have chosen to distinguish themselves. He said that the first recorded opposition was to be found in the sacred history, when Satan defied the powers of heaven, and essayed, from the mere spirit of opposition and the desire to reign himself, to overturn the existing order of right and usurp a place that he was toorder of right and usurp a place that he was to-tally unfitted to fill. For his pride and presumption he was

And yet that does not bring to them the placid joys of a righteous cause, or the laurel crown of victory. Hate, revenge, opposition, are their watch words. They are conscious of no power to do good, or to accomplish great deeds themselves. They are consolidated and inspirited by no common principle. Victory itself would be only the signal for fresh discord, anarchy and confusion among themselves. It is opposition and nothing else—opposition to whatever is, however right that may be in itself—opposition to the dominant party, because they are not of that party—in brief, an opposition that must cease to be such, and change its very nature and name, as soon as it shall have attained the object for which it is contending, if, unhappily, it ever does.—Memphi. A Word More About the Hawesville Tragedy In the Louisville Journal of yesterday, appeared letter from W. D. Mayhall, of Hawesville, de fending a publication in that paper of the 24th ult., concerning the character of Thomas S. Lowe. Judge Mayhall acknowledges that the names given as referees as to the truth of that disgraceful publication, were used without any authority Why did he not come out and state this fact, so soon as he saw the article in the Journal, so published as to induce readers to believe that it was absolutely signed by the names attached? He permitted the article to go forth to the world, with the endorsement of the Louisville Journal that it had been signed by the names attached, and never thought of correcting this outrage, until Samuel McAdams, the father-in-law of the mur dered Lowe, felt in duty bound, as an honorable man, to correct the false publication, so far as he was concerned. We say then, that Judge Mayhall's acknowledgement comes too late. It looks as if it were forced by the note of McAdams, which, however unexpected, had to be responded to, with a confession of the fraud practiced upon the community by the publication. Judge Mayhall asks Mr. McAdams to state what is false about the publication in the Journal of the 24th ult. We do not suppose that Mr. Mc Adams, as the father of Lowe's widow and the grandfather of his two infant children, will feel like entering into a newspaper controversy about the character of his murdered son-in-law. We can assure Judge Mayhall, however, that there are other men in this region who are ready to eling, and in his route passed through Kentucky! 24th of March was not the truth. There are men | wealth, and her prospects for electing a clean will state them in spite of the reign of terror gotten up in Hawesville by the murderers of Lowe to and the Presidency in 1860: prevent the truth from going before the world. The following facts in refutation of the Journal's apon him denounced him in unmeasured terms, vithout the slightest provocation or previous inwithout the slightest provocation or previous intimation of any cause of complaint. Here is a wilful perversion of the truth. At the time Lowe was cterking for Mr. Geo. K. Gheislin, at a salary of $135 per month, and the quiet gentleman envied him his situation, and tried to supplant him by intermedding with Lowe's business, as follows: It was Lowe's duty to pay the colliers monthly. If they failed to work the month out they forfeited their work. In violation of this rate the quiet gentleman advised a collier to present an account to Lowe for about two weeks work, which L. positively refused to pay. By the advice of the quiet gentleman the collier preadvice of the quiet gentleman the collier pre-sented the same account five times within a few hours, each time bearing some peremptory de-mand from his adviser to Lowe, who refused four

Thus it will be seen Lowe was meddled with by one who had no interest in the firm, consequently had no right to dictate to Lowe, who knew his duty.

It is said, Lowe met upon the street and shot, and we are left to infer that he was shot merely for being lame. What are the facts in the case?—Why, a few days before the shooting, Weller, acompanied by his brother, went into Lowe's office, and brandishing a bowic knife and two large bludgeons, exhausted the vocabulary of billings gate in denouncing Lowe, who being unarmed, had to submit for the time to the insult. But in a few days Lowe met him on the street, and denounced him, and upon Weller's making hostile demonstrations, shot him in the knee. Lowe was stried and acquitted by a jury of his peers, and public opinion sustained the acquittal, thinking, no doubt, that rheumatic individuals were out of their proper sphere when brandishing such weapons.

Mr. Lowe then removed to Lewisport, a prosperous village, it is said, with citzens contented and happy, where he was kindly received, and did a good business. &c. Well, let's sace. Mr. Lowe then removed to Lewisport, a prosperous village, it is said, with citizens contented and happy, where he was kindly received, and did a good business, &c. Well, let's see: When Lowe went there, all Democrats were under a ban of excommunication. It was boldly asserted by certain bullies that no Democrat should live there. A crowd of bullies ran E. Sandford from town, then tried Lowe, but he would not go, he said, unless he went in his coffin, and showed a determination to self his life as dearly as possible. This made the bullies desist for a time. Shortly after this, one of the bullies named Oliver concealed himself under cover of night, and threw three large scale weights at Mr. Lowe, as he was going from his store to his residence, in company going from his store to his residence, in company with his wife, thus putting her life in jeopardy. Is this a kind reception? If so, God save us from an aukind one. In addition to this, his door was smeared with human excrement, and he was subjected to company the company of ected to every conceivable annoyance that the bullies could invent.

It is said because Mr. Pate, a timid merchant, &c., presented an account to Lowe, he caned him. This is another falsehood. Pate presented the account in a rough way, but Lowe was not certain that he meant any discourtesy until a few days afterwards, when Lowe called to Pate in the street to have a conversation about the matter, and Pate remarked, you havn't treated me like a gentleman. remarked, you havn't treated me like a gentleman. Lowe then caned him until he begged for quarter, and Lowe gave it. Soon after this, twenty-one of the citizens signed and published in the Hawesville Eagle, a letter denouncing Lowe in the most relentless manner, and trying to fasten on him the cause of all the trouble in the place, to which Lowe replied in a scathing article in the Eagle which proved a thorough vindication of himself, and which brought in due time an ample apology, from the author of the attacking correspondence. Again, it is said that "Lowe made a deliberate and unprovoked attempt to take the life of Geo. Smith, Esq., one of the most substantial and best of farmers in the country." The author of the above has studiously avoided saying what kind of a man Smith was. Smith was a bully, and had worn the bels for years, prior to what we are about to relate. Smith was a bully, and had worn the beld for years, prior to what we are about to relate. Finding himself about to be supplanted in public estimation, he resolved to intimidate Lowe, and accordingly, told a Mr. McQuady, that he (Smith) had shaken his fist in Lowe's face, which he did not offer to resent. Mr. Lowe was surprised upon hearing this, as there had been no previous misunderstanding between them. Shortly after this, a fight occurred before Lowe's door. L. went out to see fair-play, when Smith, stepping up to him understanding between them. Shortly after this, a fight occurred before Lowe's door. L. went out to see fair-play, when Smith, stepping up to him accompanied by about twenty of his minions, who, with their coats off, (and being armed with brick-bats.) surrounded Lowe, and then Smith said to him: d—n you, don't draw any of your weapons here. Lowe protested the the had made no attempt to draw any. Smith then said, d—n you, don't do it, advancing toward him, in a threatening attitude. Lowe then shot him, the ball striking his left breast, but was prevented from entering his body by some metalic substance. Mr. Smith being placed hors de combat in his first engagement, resolved to redeem him self the next day, by giving Lawe an insult in the Court House, thinking that the presence of the Judge and officers of the Court would resent an insult on the moment, though death were staring him in the face. Lowe was on trial, and Smith being on the witness stand, was asked by defendant's counsel how Lowe looked more like a d—d demon than a man. Lowe, on hearing this, jumped up and said yes, and you looked more like a d—d free negro, that you are, than a white man. Smith then said, if the court don't protect me, Fil protect myself," and began to draw a pistol; then Lowe fired at him twice. Smith taking refuge behind a huge pillar in the Court House, thus displaying his bravery to the assembled multitude.

Again, it is urged that Lowe destroyed the trade and prosperity of Lewisport, which is as false as it can be. It is well known that Lowe brought trade to Lewisport that would not have gone there but for him. That he ever drove trade from the town is a slander, refuted by the fact that when he moved to Hawesville his same customers followed him up to trade with him, although Lewisport was much nearer. If refutations were necessary, none other would be required than the knowledge that in Lewisport Lowe began on borrowed capital, and in a few years he made enough to refund the loans and have a handsome surplus. Does this look like he drove trade from him?

In relation to Mr. Lowe's difficulties with McAdams, we have only to say that they are misrepresented. That he ever struck McAdams with a heavy cane, breaking it in pieces, is an unmitigated lie. There have been, in by-gone times, some little feuds between them, but after a few mutual explanations all ill-feeling ceased, and up to the day of Lowe's murder the best of feelings subsisted between them.

It is next said that Lowe sought a difficulty with Judge Mayhall. This is not true. Mayhall is an intense American, and was a candidate for County Judge in Hancock county. Lowe gave him some little frivolous cut in the papers, such an one as politicians are in the habit of getting every day. and taking for a joke as intended.

an one as politicians are in the habit of getting every day, and taking for a joke as intended. Mayhall, however, suddenly and unexpectedly to every one, took umbrage at it, and threatened to cowhide the author. Lowe upon hearing this, avowed himself as the author, which was said came near bringing on a shooting match between them. But through the intercession of friends this was settled to the satisfaction of both parties, and so far as Lowe was concerned all thought of it discarded. But Mayhall, it seems, had some hatred still rankling in his bosom, and did not fully forgive him in life, nor will he forgive his memory in death nory in death.

To the charge "that whenever Lowe appeared in an assemblage of the people the quiet and order loving citizens retired with the deepest appre-' we have to say that we have often seen a crowd of bullies who had assembled for the pur-pose of offering violence to some poor and friend-less man retire with the deepest apprehensions upon seeing Lowe approach the crowd. Upon one occasion, in Hawesville, a steamboat captain, accompanied by several associates, had crowded around a poor man named Mills, for the purpose of whipping him for not being "all right on the goose." Lowe seeing them, and divining their obgoose." Lowe seeing them, and divining their object, rushed up to see fair play, when the crowd dispersed instanter, putting their feet down much after the fashion of a quarter-horse, many of them with such deep apprehensions that we expected their hair to turn white momentarily. How many men in this selfish world can be found that will befriend a poor and friendless man, when by so doing he runs the risk of incurring the displeas-ure of several of high social position? But few would do it as Lowe did.

would do it as Lowe did.

Again, it is charged that Lowe, after the origin of the Maxwell difficulty, met with a youth from Cloverport, in Hawesville, and supposing him to be Maxwell's friend, approached him and struck him several blows with a cowhide, his hand resting the while on a cocked pistol. In the above we find a perfect nest of lies. The youth mentioned weighs 155 lbs., (30 lbs more than Lowe,) and is twenty-eight years of age, who, some nine months since, in Cloverport, placed himself at the months since, in Cloverport, placed himself at the head of a crowd of bullies, in order to drive Lowe from the town. He waited upon Lowe, and ordered him to leave. This youth of such stately proportions was loud in his denunciations of Mr. Lowe, suggesting the propriety of tying him and throwing him in the river. Being surrounded by his friends, he loudly proclaimed that Lowe was a coward, when Lowe was alone and without a friend on the ground. Suffice it to say that mon friend on the ground. Suffice it to say that upon his arrival in Hawesville, some months ago, Lowe cowhided him, to which he very quietly submitted, knowing full well that he was in the wrong.

That women were afraid to pass or let their children pass Lowe's store for fear of a random shot, we utterly deny. That one family, the head of which had been disgraced by Lowe, said such things, is quite probable. But, that it was the truth, no one will for a moment contend. In regard to the assertion that Lowe died unregretted in his community, we have to say, that a more stupendous lie never appeared in print, and could only have been uttered by a miserable craven, who feared Lowe during life, and hates him in death. The reasons that the community have for not avenging his death, are identical with those of Louisville for not avenging the outrages of Bloody Monday.

of Louisville for Bloody Monday. An Illinois kaitor on Guthrie.

One of the editors of the Daily Magnet, pub" lished at Decatur, Illinois, has lately been trav state that the publication in the Journal of the He gives a good account of our beloved Commonabout who know the facts in the case, and who Democratic ticket next August, and has the following in relation to the Hon. James Guthrie,

We did not fail to talk freely with our friends publication have already been furnished us, and others will yet be forthcoming, before this most atrocious murder of Lowe can pass from the memory of the living:

It is said that in the latter part of the year 1854 Mr. Lowe invited into his own office a very quiet and estimable gentleman, and drawing weapons upon him denounced him in unmeasured terms who were opposed to Southern fire-eating and in those States in reference to their future politihealed, and the conservative men of all parties, who were opposed to Southern fire-eating and Northern abolitionism, would necessarily vote for such a man in preference to any nomination that would be made by the combined Opposition. And knowing Mr. Guthrie personally and politically, as we do, we heartily endorsed every sentiment advanced in his favor, and will add one remark that we have often made before Mr. Guthrie was spoken of for the Presidency, and that is, if there is any man now living possessed of all the good qualities that characterized the public life of that correct statemen Andrew Leyers. life of that correct statesman, Andrew Jackson, that man is James Guthrie.

A letter from London says: As most things

The letter from London says: As most things are good or bad, tolerable or intolerable, in a comparative sense, so I speak out in defense of American crinoline! The ladies in Broadway are no circumstance in their circumferance to what one sees here, especially at parties and on court days. At the French opera the other night, there was no little merriment at the unsuccessful attempt of a pretty woman, expanded into such vast proportions that she could not get into the stalls, and had to retire to a box! It would, perhaps, have been unkind for us to laugh outright, had she not enjoyed the predicament as well as the public. All the fine ladies wear Balmorals in the streets, with the skirts of their dresses held up twelve or sixteen inches; so that on a fine day one sees as many red petticoats in the parks as red-legged soldiers in Paris.

TRIAL OF HON, DANIEL E. SICKLES Eighth Day's Proceedings. Rev. Mr. Haley a seat near the prisoner. Mr. Woolridge, who has figured so conspicuously in the case, occupied a seat next Mr. Sickles' father.

He is a tall, powerfully built man, of some 35 years of age. He lost the use of his lower limbs by an accident, and has consequently to use crutches. He wears a thick moustache, but no whiskers, and is a resolute looking man.

John J. McElhone, the first witness called for he defense, was examined. Brady—Resides in Philadelphia; is one of the reporters of the Congressional Globe; has known Mr. Sickles two or three years; has known Mrs. Sickles more than a year; visited Sickles frequently, and was on terms of friendship with him; has known Key seven or eight years; had frequent Sickles. Jonah D. Hoover examined. Brady—Resides in Washington and was form-erly U. S. Marshal; Key was my most intimate and cherished friend for ten years or more: first became acquainted with Sickles some time after inauguration of Pres't Pierce; became intimiate with him; I think I introduced Key to Sickles either at Willard's or at my own house; the rela-tions which existed between Key and Sickles were relations of friendship. He was examined regarding the correspondence between Key and Sickles, which took place in 1858; Key told witness that he had received a note from Sickles telling him that so far as that affair was concerned he was perfectly satisfied, and that he hoped their relations would continue as previously. Question—In your interview with Sickles what expression of kindness toward Key did he use. Answer—He said he had always liked Key; that he thought him a man of honor; that this thing shocked him when he first heard of it, but that owing to Key's and witness' assurance he was willing to meet him as formerly. Rev. Smith Payne examined.

Brady—Am a clergyman of the Episcopalian Church; reside in the City of Washington; know Sickles and his wife; made their acquaintance twelve months ago.

Saw Mr. Sickles the Saturday preceding the day of Key's death; it was about 5 o'clock in the afternoon; I was coming from the capitol in a carriage with my son; as we were passing Lafayette square, my attention was called by son to Sickles, who was passing, going eastward; I was struck by his appearance, and called my son's attention to it; I do know that I can very accurately define it now; the impression made on me was, that his appearance was very peculiar; perhaps in attempting to define I might mix up my subsequent expressions with those which I had at the time, but it was certainly very peculiar.

I thought there was a wildness, like a man who was in some profound, some great trouble of some kind or other. I do not know that I can accurately draw the line between my previous im-

my son, how very bad or how very strange he looks. I do not recollect the precise words. It was enough to show that my attention was called specially to the peculiarity of his appearance.—
The impression produced on my mind certainly was, that there was a kind of mingled defiant air about him, a desolate air; I do not know how otherwise to define it.

know that he saw me. Hon. R. J. Walker sworn: Either three or with in twenty minutes after 3 o'clock I saw Sickles in his own house in the afternoon of Sunday, February 27th; as he came in his manner appeared excited; there was something strange and unusual about his voice; was somewhat different from the manner in which I had usually heard him speak;

he advanced and took me by the hand; I think he then said—"a thousand thanks for coming to see me under these circumstances." Billiards.

The Cheapest, most Brilliant, and most Convenient Artificial Light in the World.

THE Vesper Gas Light has won for itself a reputation for elegance, economy, safety and simplicity, far beyond any other artificial light. The Vesper Gas flame and fixtures precisely resemble in form those of coal gas; but in brilliancy and purity of light, it possesses a decided advantage over even Louisville coal gas. It requires no chimney; there is no need of daily trimming of wick; and the construction of the fixtures is so simple that it is not liable to get out of order, and a child can manage it readily. The gas burnt in the Vesper fixtures is generated from pure coal oil, without any admixture of alcohol or other foreign ingredient. It is entirely free from odor while burning, as, by a simple contrivance, the vapor of the oil is mixed with the atmosphere, producing perfect combustion and a most intense light. The light has been pronounced, by those who have had it in constant use for months, as most pleasant to the eye while reading or sewing, in re being no filckering or unsteadiness in the flame. The Vesper Gas light is portable, and can be used in town or country—in fact, wherever artificial light is required. The fixtures themselves are adapted in styles to suit all tastes, from the plain slogle light burner to the most costly chandelier. Each chandelier is perfect in itself; there is no outlay to be made for service pipes. The gas is generated in the burner, and all fixtures, from the cheap single light burner to the expensive chandelier, are miniature gas works in themselves. They are sold at prices which do not exceed the cost of ordinary gas fixtures of similar styles and ornamentation. A price list will be sent to any address on application.

MERCHANTS

visiting Louisville should not fail to procure the Vesper Gas fixtures for their stores.

The proprietor respectfully requests responsible merchants in every town and county in the State to correspond with him, believing they will find it to their interest to aid him in introducing this unequaled light to Vesper fixtures and Coal Oil, prepared expressly for this bu ner, kept constantly on hand, and for sale whole-sale and retail.

RESOLUTE AGROUND—From the officers of the Henry Flough, we learn that the steamer Resolute, bound for Fort Smith, was hard aground in the Arkansas river, about seventy-five miles above Little Rock, and as the river was falling fast, she would have to lighten herself con-iderably before she would get off.

THE TRIAL OF HON. DANIEL E. SICKLES Eighth Day's Proceedings Continued. Washington, April 12.—He had scarcely repeated these words, when I saw a great change in his appearance. He became very much convulsed, indeed, he threw himself on the sofa, covered his face with his hands, and then broke into an agony of unnatural and unearthly sounds, the most re-markable I ever heard, something like screams, interrupted by violent sobbing. From his con-vulsed appearance in the act of writhing, his condition appeared to me very frightful and ap-palling, so much so, that I thought if it lasted much longer he must become insane. He was much longer he must become insane. He was indulging in constant exclamations about dishonor having been brought on his house, wife, and child. He seemed particularly to dwell on the disgrace brought upon his child. I should think this continued ten minutes. I endeavored to pacify him with very little effect. I think this continued ten minutes. I endeavored to pacify him with very little effect. I turned from him to go to a physician myself, but he seemed to stop a little these violent exclamations and finally they broke off. The spasms became more violent until they ceased. He must have been there something over half an hour. I accompanied him from there to the jail. I was still alarmed at his condition, not knowing when the convulsions would recur.

Cross-examined.—At first I do not think any Cross-examined.—At first I do not think any person was present but Butterworth. I was very much excited myself, but I will not be certain. I think Butterworth and Goddard came in when these terrible convulsions occurred. I think no one was present but Butterworth and myself. I remained, talking with Butterworth four or five minutes, when Sickles came in alone and stayed with the convenient of the second stayed was from a great very little time. I was from a great very little time. with us some little time. I was, from a great va-riety of causes, much excited; never was more so than on that occasion. When the convulsions came on I thought I would go for a physician. At this point, Stanton, who was near the pris-oner, asked that the cross-examination be discon-tinued for the present, in order that the prisoner might retire for a few minutes. Sickles, during the statement of the witness, was violently affected, breaking out into sobs, and profusely shedding tears.

Messrs. E. B. Hart and Isaac Bell, one each side, and Sickles senior, together with others, accom-panied him from the court room. The witness, particularly, and many spectators, were moved to tears. The scene was one of deep interest. The following is Mrs. Sickles' confession, which was offered in evidence: I have been in a house in Fifteenth street with Mr. Key, how many times I don't know, I believe the house belongs to a colored man; the house is unoccupied; I commenced going there the latter part of January; I have been in it alone and with Mr. Key; I usually stayed an hour or more; there is a bed in it, in the second story; did what was usual for a wicked woman to do; the intimacy usual for a wicked woman to do; the intimacy commenced this winter, when I came from New York; in that house was an intimacy of an improper kind; I have met him half a dozen times or more at different hours of the day; on Monday of this week and Wednesday also; the meeting day of this week and Wednesday also; the meeting was arranged when we met in the street and at parties; I never would speak to him when Mr Sickles was at home, because I knew he didn't like me to speak to him; I did't see Mr. Key for some days after I got here; he then told me he had hired the house, as a place where he and I could meet; I ageed to it; there was nothing in the house to eat or drink; the room is warmed by a wood fire; Mr. Key generally goes there first; we have walked there together, say four times. I do not think any more: I was there on times, I do not think any more; I was there or Wednesday last, between 2 and 3 o'clock; I was there alone; Laura, my daughter, was at Mrs. Hoover's; Mr. Key took her and left her there at my request; from there I went to Fifteenth street to meet Mr Key, and from there to the milk-woman's; immediately after Mr. Key left Laura at Mrs. Hoover's, I met him in Fifteenth street; I went in the back gate, went into the same room, and there an improper interview was had; I undressed my self, and Mr. Key undressed himself also; (this oc curred on Wednesday the 23d of February, 1859. Mr. Sickles was sometimes out of town, and sometimes at the Capitol. I think the intimacy commenced in April or May, 1858. As a general thing, I have worn a black and white woolen plaid dress and beaver hat trim med with black velvet. I have worn a black silk dress there, also a plaid silk dress, a black velvet cloak trimmed with lace, and black velvet shawl trimmed with finge. On Wednesday I either had on my brown dress or black and white woolen dress, beaver hat and velvet shawl. I arranged with Mr. Key to go in the back way. After leaving Laura at Mrs. Hoover's he met me at Douglas'. The arrangement to go in the back way was either made in the street or at Douglas'. as we would likely be seen. The house is in Fifteenth street, between K. and L. streets, on the left hand side of the way. We arranged the interview for Wednesday in the street, I think. On Monday I went in the front door; it was open; to bed together. Mr. Key has ridden in Mr. Sickles' carriage, and has called at his house without Mr. Sickles' knowledge, after my being Lafayette Square. Washington, February 26th, 1859. Mr. and Mrs. Pendleton dined here two weeks ago last Thursday, with a large party. Mr. Key, her brother, was also here, and at my suggestion he was invited, because Mrs. Pendleton was, and also because he had invited Mr. Sickles to dine with him, and Mr. Sickles wished to invite all of those from whom he had received invitations, and Mr. Sickles said do as you choose. CONTINUATION OF TESTIMONY. Bridget Duffy, nurse and lady's-maid in Mr. Sickles' house, sworn.

I remember, the Saturday before Mr. Key's decease, that Mr. Sickles came home in the evening between 5 and 6 o'clock. Mrs. Sickles was at home that afternoon. I did not see him at the dinner table; he went down stairs to dinner. At night, my attention was called to Mr. Sickles. night my attention was called to Mr. Sickles.— There was some unhappy feeling between Mr. and Mrs. Sickles. Mr. Sickles went down stairs; did not eat, but returned to his bedroom. He asked me to fetch him up something to eat, which I did His manner and appearance seemed troubled. I saw him half or three-quarters of an hour after I left the dinner for him. Subsequently I heard loud talking between Mr. and Mrs. Sickles; their door was partly open. This was after 6 o'clock.

[Mr. Brady here handed a paper to the witness, which she looked at.]

Witness resumed—I wrote my name to that paper in the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Sickles.

[Sensation throughout the court room.] I signed my name to it at the request of Mrs. Sickles; Miss Ridgely also signed that paper; that is Mrs. Sick-les' signature; I saw her write her name to that paper, and she asked me to sign it; I retired to bed that night about 12 o'clock, when I left Mr. and Mrs. Sickles both there; I don't think that either of them went to bed all night; he stayed all night in the bed room, and she in an adjoining room, lying on the floor; next morning I came in and found her sitting on the floor, dressed, and with her head resting on a chair; this was about 8 o'clock; Mr. Sickles had left the bed room; she lay on the floor during the whole of Sunday; during the previous night I often heard Mr. Sickles cry, and Mrs. Sickles too; in the morning when I met him on the stairs, he cried and sobbed violently, burying his face in his hands, and uttering various exclamations of grief; I cried also myself, for he appeared to be in great trouble.

Mr. Brady handed the paper containing the confession of Mrs. Sickles to the counsel for the prosecution, and requested that it be admitted as evidence. Mr. Ould objected to its being received, as no woman can be a witness for or against her husband.

He said he did not relate to the question of the risoners insanity, which the defence were trying prove, they must show that insanity existed, and let the cause alone. Mr. Graham said the common law allowed them to prove causes instead of presuming it. They wanted to show that the prisoner had become intoxicated by the maddening bowl that had been handed him by his wife, and that he had become insane by her confession of her grait and biddening handely her confession of her grait and him that her biddening handely her confession of her grait and her biddening handely her confession of her grait and her biddening handely her confession of her grait and her biddening handely her confession of her grait and her biddening handely handely her confession of her biddening her biddening handely handely her biddening her biddening her biddening handely her biddening her biddenin insane by her confession of her guilt and his disgrace. He had a right to believe proof coming om his wife. The argument had not concluded when the court adjourned.

Washington. April 12.—Lord Lyons to-day presented to the President his credentials as Envoy Extraordinary, and Minister Plenipotentiary of her Britanic majesty. In doing so, he gave utterance to the most profound feelings of friendship of his Covernment for that of the U. States, and expressed the hope that the ties of amity would be drawn still closer. The President warm-ly resinguaged, the sentiments announced. The ly reciprocated the sentiments announced. The interview was of a more than usually cordial

Although the Government has nothing more than telegraphic accounts concerning the recognition of the Juarez government by Minister McLane, it gives full credit to the intelligence that enough has transpired to warrant the assertion that Senor Mata will be received as Minister to the United States on his return to Washington.

At the time Mr. McLane went ato Mexico, Miramon was represented to be in force before Vera Cruz, and the issue was doubtful. He went thither with the full understanding that if Miramon was defeated at that point, he should recognize the Liberal Government. Hence, the determination of his action in the premises.

It is understood here as the reason why Mr. Forsyth was not sent back to Mexico as U. S. Minister was because, by the recognition of Tuluoga's Government, he rendered himself unpopular with the Liberal party, and hence it was considered that his usefulness would be impaired.

This caution is rendered essentially necessary, as large quantities of inferior and defective Linens are prepared, season after season, and sealed with the name of RICH-ARDSON, by Irish Houses, who, regardless of the injury thus inflicted alike on the American consumer and the manufacturers of the genuine Goods, will not readily abandon a business so profitable, while purchasers can be imposed on with Goods of a worthless character.
